TOTAL LOSS—The residence of Hancock North Central Principal Donald Hillman was completely destroyed by a fire apparently caused by a major short in a 220 volt line running to a clothes dryer early Tuesday morning, according to Ed Friloux, Hancock County Arson Squad Investigator. Hillman, his wife, five-month-old son Patrick, and 18-year-old son Andy all were asleep in the house when the fire broke out. They were awakened by David Kopf, HNC assistant principal, and Jerry Crowe, HNC band director. All occupants were reportedly uninjured in their escape through windows as doorways were covered by flames. Among those checking debris Tuesday were, from left, Hillman, Dan Hillman of Hattiesburg, Hillman's father, Irvin Favre, HNC head football coach; and Ed Clark of DeLisle, Mrs. Hillman's father. ## Controversial beach land in zoning change request

By WAYNE DUCUMBE JR.

A Waveland official at a City Board of Aldermen meeting Tuesday revealed controversial beachfront property at the corner of Beach Boulevard and Aiken Drive is included in a zoning change request apparently presented to the board last month.

Barbara Rappold, city clerk and Ward One alderman, at a Dec. 8 City Board of Aldermen meeting refused to provide details of an apparent zoning change request discussed at length with Mayor John Longo.

When asked if the area in discussion was the Hymel property, beachfront land which the owners unsuccessfully attempted to build time-sharing condominiums, Rappold replied 'no.'

That property is located just northeast of Aiken on the boulevard.

When asked at a Tuesday board meeting, in which the aldermen set a zoning change hearing, what area is being considered for a zoning change, Rappold said the area is roughly bordered by Aiken, the boulevard, Central Lane and Capital Avenue.

The Hymel property is included in the area which petitioners are seeking to change from R-3 (single and multi-family dwelling use) to R-1 (single family home use).

Several months ago Richard Hymel attempted to build time-sharing condominiums on his property, but the city leaders proposed and after hearings successfully imposed an ordinance which now bans any such development in residentially-zoned areas.

The Hymel property is posted with a 'For Sale' sign this week.

Rappold also revealed at the Tuesday meeting that the city received a letter from E.M. Rowley who resides at the corner of Lakewood Drive and the boulevard.

She said the letter states the Beachfront Property Owners Association and 'other residents' support the zoning change.

A supportive petition was included in the request, she also revealed.

The aldermen voted to set a public hearing in conjunction with the next City Planning and Zoning Commission meeting at 4:45 p.m. Jan. 25.

County indigent defender seeking additional help

By BRENT MACEY

Hancock County Public Indigent Defender William Frisbie recommended the Hancock County Board of Supervisors budget $30,000 for his office next year.

Currently the position is considered 'part-time' and is budgeted $12,000 by the county annually.

Frisbie, who addressed the supervisors at a meeting Monday, asked the county fathers to hire him a full time secretary and also purchase his office a copy machine and filing cabinet.

The supervisors agreed to consider the requests but took no action at the Monday meeting.

Frisbie, who was named public defender after Yvonne Chapman Sills resigned two months ago because of the work load involved with the job, noted he has already been appointed to represent some 40 people involving 80 felony cases.

Eleven of those cases are set for trial when Circuit Court begins Monday, he said.

Two of those trials may be postponed since two defendants escaped from the Hancock County Jail on Sunday.

Frisbie said he expects to handle an additional 30 cases after the Hancock County Grand Jury hands down indictments later this month.

He said the duties of the part-time job sometimes require him to attend Youth Court proceedings as well as Waveland and Bay St. Louis City Court. He has also had to travel to Gulfport.

"All of this takes time," he noted.

Circuit Court Judge Ruble Griffin, who was in Hancock County to install a Circuit Clerk and two Hancock County School Board members, said public defenders in Harrison County are awarded $350 for each case in which a defendant pleads guilty. Some $1,000 is awarded to the attorney when the case goes to trial, he said.

Judging by these figures and his own case load, Frisbie said he felt an increase of $18,000 for his office, "would still save the county $60,000."

In other business at the Monday meeting, Griffin installed Jerry Heltzmann as Hancock County Circuit Clerk.

Griffin also installed newly elected Hancock County Board members Billie Fay Lyons and Tommy Shaw as representatives for Beat 4, and Beat 5 respectively.

The supervisors reappointed A.A. (Dolph) Keller as president of the board and named Beat 3 Supervisor James Travica as vice president. Walker Gex was reappointed board attorney.

Other reappointments include: Bob DEFENDER—Page 7A

Quick action by neighbors saves family from inferno

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Swift action by neighbors apparently saved four Hancock County residents early Tuesday as their home was destroyed by fire, according to local authorities.

A middle of the night fire destroyed the residence of Hancock North Central Principal Donald Hillman.

The fire was noticed by Karen Kopf, wife of the high school's assistant principal as she was up checking on one of her children around 1:30 a.m.

The Kops live about 100 yards from the Hillman residence adjacent to the trailer residence of Jerry Crowe, the school's band director.

Kopf was awakened and he and Crowe banged on the walls of the principal's residence as the entrances were completely in flames.

Hillman later Tuesday said, "My wife woke me saying the house was on fire. I thought she was having a bad dream. I then saw the flames coming down the hallway."

The principal, his wife, son Andy, 18-years old; and infant son Patrick, age five months had to escape through bedroom windows to safety.

The residence owned by the county school system was totally destroyed, as well as the contents owned by the Hillmans in addition to the principal's 1981 diesel Pontiac Grand Prix.

The cause of the fire has been listed as an electrical major short in a 220 volt line running to a clothes dryer, according to Hancock County Arson Investigator Ed Friloux.

Friloux stated, "The fire apparently started in the attic over the carport and broke through above the automobile. We received the call at Diamondhead at 1:23 a.m. and started dispatching to the various firefighters. Fire companies responding included White Cypress, Leetown, Kila, Waveland, with Bay St. Louis on standby."

"Coast Electric Power Association was called as well as Blossman Gas technicians. The residence was too far gone by the time firefighters arrived to save the building," Friloux added.

Dick Kosbab, manager of Hancock Insurance Agency, reported the residence was covered under the blanket coverage his firm has with the school system.

Kosbab stated, "The coverage is through The Aetna Life and Casualty Insurance Companies. The coverage does not include the contents owned by the principal's family."

Estimated loss value was placed at $43,100 for the building, and $7,000 contents in addition to auto by Friloux. The origin of the fire was investigated by Friloux and Jay Marsh, arson investigators who filed their report with State Fire Marshall Norman Cowart of Wiggins.

"This is the state law, and we have informed Cowart of the fire and have forwarded our reports to his office," Friloux allowed.

Hancock County Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph said Wednesday, "I am now in the process of attempting to acquire housing in the immediate area of the school for Hillman and his family."

"I am sure a discussion will be held on the replacement of the principal's residence at the next regular county school board meeting scheduled at 6 p.m. on January 17," Randolph stated.

The Hillmans are temporarily residing with family members in DeLisle.

Friloux said this was the second county fire of the year.

A 6 a.m. fire on January 1 destroyed a trailer located on West Kemper in Bayside Park.

Friloux reported, "Bayside and Clermont Harbor responded to the alarm and an arson squad investigation into the origin and owner of the mobile home is underway."

Bay initiates effort to remedy gas leaks

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A gas leak survey started in Bay St. Louis on Tuesday, according to Mayor Larry Bennett.

Bennett reported to the council Tuesday, "Some 24 households were checked today starting on North Beach at the city limits. Three grade one leaks, four grade two, and four grade three leaks were found."

Bill Johnson, city superintendent said the grade one leaks were the most serious and his crews had already repaired two of them, adding, "We are going to try and repair the grade ones as soon as discovered."

In other business the Bay council authorized Ron Murray of Ron Murray Consultants to contact approved contractors for bids on the 1982 Small Cities Housing Rehabilitation Program for 20 residences for Monday, Jan. 17.

A discussion was held about the council's regular scheduled meeting for Jan. 18, as several members were planning on attending the Mississippi Municipal Association meeting with the State legislation in Jackson on that night.

Upon recommendation by Joseph Gex, board attorney, a motion was made to change this meeting only from Tuesday to Thursday, Jan. 20, and for it to be advertised in the newspaper.

Council also authorized Murray to proceed with initial inspections, work write-ups and cost estimates on the next 20 eligible applicants for the Housing Rehabilitation Project.

A lone bid was received on a van for the fire department and taken under advisement by the council. It is to be checked by Fire Chief Andrew Lizana to see if it meets his department's requirements.

The bid of $2,850 was provided by Ronnie Fletcher on a 1978 Dodge Van.

Council President Harry Farve asked Murray if there would be any funds left from the 1981 Small Cities Project in-

C. Dewey Mosley has been appointed superintendent of Seaboard System Railroad's Mobile Division with headquarters in Mobile, Ala.

He succeeds Joseph B. Sellers who is retiring after more than 34 years' service with the company and its predecessors.

The Mobile Division has more than 1,100 miles of main line track in Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Florida, extending from New Orleans, La., to Selma, Mobile and Montgomery, Ala., Atlanta, Ga., and Chattanooga, Fla.

As division superintendent, Mosley will have supervision over all the division's transportation, mechanical, maintenance and terminal operations.

Mosley, who has been superintendent of the rail system's Louisville, Ky., division since 1977, began his railroad career in 1951 when he entered service at Mobile as a telegraph operator for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, a predecessor of Seaboard System Railroad.

He later served in varying capacities, including chief train dispatcher, trainmaster and assistant superintendent. He was superintendent of the railroad's Evansville, Ind., division before moving to Louisville.

Seaboard System Railroad is the new name of the merged Seaboard Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville railroads. The newly combined rail system now functions as a consolidated system, offering shippers single rail service between such points as Chicago and Florida with one routing designation—SBD.

The 16,000 route mile Seaboard System Railroad also includes the smaller Georgia, Clinchfield and West Point Route rail lines.

The name formerly used to describe the total rail network—Family Lines Rail System has been discontinued. Seaboard System Railroad, Inc., is a unit of CSX Corporation.

"The Verdict" ...
"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a decision?"

"We have your honor. We find the New Paul Newman Film, 'The Verdict,' guilty of providing quality, adult entertainment and offering superb performances by Newman, James Mason, Jack Warden and Milo O'Shea. We thereby recommend that everyone see this film as soon as possible."

"Case closed."
It's true. The new Newman vehicle, directed by Sidney Lumet in his impeccably deliberate style, is a rich character development full of double takes and double crosses.

Newman shines as Frank Galvin, an alcoholic lawyer, embittered and buried in Boston. The opening credits roll with little fanfare; Newman plays pinball at a local pub and then tours area funeral homes giving his card to bereaving relatives.

This type of crass behavior sets the tone for this stark, sullen story.

Given a break by a close colleague, played with utter believability by Jack Warden, Galvin guzzles his gin and fan-tasizes about million dollar settlements.

A superb sequence involving Galvin taking Polaroid snapshots of his only client—a young woman turned into an invalid through a doctor's negligence—reverses Galvin's way of thinking for the moment. As he reiterates later in the film, "This isn't just a case, it's the only case." The problem arises when Galvin, rusty in trial court (he's had only four cases in three years), decides to go in to court against the Catholic hospital, the doctor and all interests except his own.

The hospital enlists the legal aid of Mr. Concannon, an F. Lee Bailey-type super lawyer, played perfectly by the aristocratic James Mason, and his contingent of sharp, young lawyers. Sometimes ethical, sometimes not, Concannon vs. Galvin provides the pivotal test wherein we must choose the lesser of two evils.

Throughout his career, Newman's anti-hero characters such as Cool Hand Luke, Hud and Butch Cassidy, possessed some redeeming quality. Galvin, on the other hand, is a "whore to the system" as one character aptly points out.

His strained, raspy-voiced Galvin is thoroughly despicable and yet we yearn for his victory in court. Newman is stunning as the ravaged lawyer struggling to regain his respectability.

Lumet's direction has always been careful and deliberate. Films such as 'Dog Day Afternoon,' 'Serpico' and, more recently 'Prince of the City' demonstrate Lumet's steady, methodical control. And 'The Verdict' is carefully manipulated to a stimulating climax, despite its almost languid approach.

No doubt some will feel 'The Verdict' is prolonged beyond its subject matter. And the mysterious Charlotte Rampling ('The Night Porter') provides little support as Galvin's drunken lover.

Still, 'The Verdict' is one of 1982's best films. It is a quietly disturbing portrait of a man against "the system," "the system" having created Galvin, a man with little or no regard for himself or anyone else for that matter.

Quotables by CUEVAS

We have to extend 'Hero of the Week' honors to David and Karen Kopf and Jerry Crowe.

We have been told by several authorities that their actions probably saved the lives of the Hillman family at Hancock North Central early Tuesday morning as their residence was destroyed.

Mrs. Kopf was checking on one of her children when she noted through a window the Hillman's residence was going up in flames.

Her husband and Crowe, who lives in a trailer near the burning structure which housed the sleeping principal, his wife, and two children, pounded on the walls of the residence to awaken them as flames were destroying the building.

We wish to offer our congratulations to the Kopfs and Crowe for their swift action.

We realize we have just gotten over Christmas and the welcoming of the New Year, so many will be surprised to hear that Mardi Gras will be here next month.

The Krewe of Triton will again ride on Mardi Gras Day which is February 15, and participation by general public is urged.

If you are a member of a marching group, or someone wanting to build a float for Mardi Gras and be a part of the parade, Triton welcomes outside participation.

Information on participation can be obtained by calling 467-6585, as there will be trophies or prizes awarded to the best entries.

It is not too early to start planning for Mardi Gras Day.

This week, The Sea Coast Echo starts its 92 year of publication.

The Echo has been published in Hancock County since 1892, and not too many businesses are still around from that era.

Many significant things have happened to Hancock County over the years, and have been reported in the Echo.

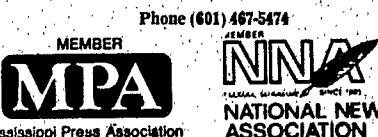

The county has come a long way since 1892, and we hope it will continue to grow and prosper. We hope to continue serving our readers for many years to come.

The People's Business

MISSISSIPPI LAWS AND AGENCIES AFFECTING BUSINESS

Over the years the number of state laws and agencies affecting business has proliferated. With each state legislative session, not to mention federal based government directives, more laws and agencies have come into existence.

Keeping track of this growing number of major state laws and agencies is no easy job. The Mississippi Economic Council, in an effort to keep the public informed, earlier this year assigned a special task force to review the current listing of laws and agencies affecting business.

Now, after several months of work, the task force is nearing completion of an updated guide to these important laws and agencies. The new publication is expected to be available soon.

This new guide is designed to provide those both in and out of the business community with current information on a broad range of state agencies and laws, most of which weigh heavily on the affairs of businesses, both large and small.

IMPROVING THE STATE AID HIGHWAY SYSTEM

More than 30 years ago the state's leaders developed a program that was to modernize Mississippi's transportation system. Back then, the state's rural road system was a patchwork of dirt roads and hard surface country roads.

Mississippi badly needed a road system which would bridge the widening gap between rural and urban areas and provide the basis for economic development. This transportation system, launched in 1950, was named the State Aid Highway System.

By the close of 1981, the State Aid program had provided $875.76 million in construction on 5,214 projects covering more than 10,000 miles of roads and bridges during its 30-year history. Moreover, the State Aid System had successfully linked the economies and the people of rural and urban Mississippi.

But over the last 15 years Mississippi's transportation system has undergone a change, with the migration of people from rural to urban areas, bringing about a need for change in the transportation system. In a recent study the Mississippi Economic Council concluded that the State Aid System should be reviewed and updated to ensure its operating efficiency.

The report made a number of recommendations, noting that under the 30-year-old funding formula, many counties continue to receive the same level of State Aid funds even though traffic activity has been reduced substantially. The Council concluded that the State Aid System should be updated to that "principles of quality, fairness, and equity will be maintained."

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

What advantages are unique to newspapers as an advertising medium? I'm Trying To Decide What To Do.

Dear TTID: Roger Simon, whose column in the Chicago Sun-Times is syndicated through the Los Angeles Times to some 100 newspapers, recently discussed a newspaper advertising in a column that appeared in Advertising Age.

Simon's reasons from a consumer's viewpoint included:

- Portability. With newspaper, an ad travels around with the consumer all day. You can take a radio or tv to the beach, but if it gets wet, you're out big bucks. If your paper gets wet you're out a quarter. Besides it will dry out.
- Versatility. If the kids get noisy, roll up your newspaper and tap them on the head. Don't do that with tv.
- Status. When a person reads a newspaper he tells others something about himself. Something good.

He cites an interviewer reading a newspaper and the impression it makes compared with someone in the gutter of life listening to a radio or balancing a portable tv in his lap. What would that say about him? Which would you hire? Which person would you like to reach with your ad?

• Believability. This, Simon says, makes newspapers the most desirable ad medium. People believe in them in their heart and guts. Newspapers, he says, are the only medium in which the primary message is the truth, not entertainment.

And if the consumer trusts the medium, he is more likely to trust the message.

"That kind of trust can be a big challenge for advertisers, because they have to line up to that trust and be worthy of it," he concludes.

"I think the smart ones take up that challenge. And I think the smart ones profit from it."

M E C

Mississippi's State Aid Road System, which was created more than 30 years ago to strengthen the state's economy through improvements in rural roads, should be updated to ensure its operating efficiency, a state business organization says.

The Mississippi Economic Council said that a study it conducted into the State Aid Road System found that parts of the program, established in 1950, should be revised because of changes in Mississippi transportation patterns over the last 30 years.

"It has made a significant contribution to the economic development of Mississippi," the report concluded. "However, like many programs planned and designed for another era, the State Aid System requires review and evaluation to assure that the intent of the system's architects continues to be fulfilled and that principles of quality, fairness, and equity be maintained," it added.

Indianola business owner W. W. Gresham, Jr., directed the work of the study committee. Monticello manufacturing executive Howard Hinesley chairs the Council's Transportation Committee.

The report noted that in its 32-year history, the State Aid Program has been credited with providing "the backbone of Mississippi's highway transportation program, one which links rural-based segments of the economy with the new network of federal and state highways."

As of fiscal 1981, the report said that the program had accounted for $875.76 million in State Aid construction on 5,214 projects covering more than 10,000 miles of roads and bridges.

But because of changes in traffic patterns in rural and urban areas, the MEC recommended that the program undergo a review so that its legislative intent continues to be met.

In addition, the MEC recommended that the program's funding formula be changed to reflect changes in traffic activity in Mississippi.

The Council recommended that:

- 1) The designation of roads in the State Aid System continue to conform to the criteria for route selection required by the Legislature.
- 2) State highways which are returned to county jurisdiction by virtue of their replacement by new highway construction be included by legislation in the State Aid System, provided that they meet State Aid criteria.
- 3) The Legislature assign final responsibility for approval of State Aid routes to the State Highway Commission, with the approval based on recommendations from the State Aid engineer and county officials.
- 4) The formula for allocation of state funds to the counties for the State Aid System be revised on the following basis: one third in the ratio that the county's rural population bears to the total rural population of all of the counties, one third in the ratio which the area of each county bears to the total area of all counties, and one third in the ratio that the county's maintained road mileage bears to the total county-maintained mileage in all of the counties.
- 5) At least 50 percent of all state financial aid to counties for road purposes be designated for construction on the State Aid Road System until each county brings all State Aid mileage up to standards.
- 6) The Legislature examine the State Aid Road System on a continuing basis, evaluating the need for state assistance for county roads, evaluating the effectiveness of state financial assistance, and distribution of State Aid mileage and revenues among the counties on the bases of equity and need.

THE EDUCATION PACKAGE

A few weeks ago most observers felt that the special legislative session wouldn't produce any major education legislation.

It was conventional wisdom that legislator interests were too diverse for enactment of major legislation at this time. And then there was the question about how any new program would be financed.

But the education reform package passed in special session was indeed a major piece of legislation, and then some.

It will be many years before the programs, authorized by the legislation, have a real life effect on the education of the people of Mississippi. That's why education is always a difficult subject to deal with—the people must pay now for benefits that won't come until much later.

Passage of the sales tax increase may create a hardship for some of Mississippi's citizens. Hopefully, with improvements in the economy, perhaps alternate means of financing long-term education programs can be found and the sales tax can be reduced.

It is the people who will eventually benefit from this education package. And it is the people who will pay for it. But without advances in education, Mississippians now and in future generations would pay a much higher price.

Improving Vocational-Tech

Over the years the concept of training people for jobs in the local school system is an idea which has slowly gained acceptance. These programs, which fall within vocational-technical training, are now found in school systems throughout the nation.

In Mississippi, vocational-technical training has provided the skills that the business world requires and the jobs that people need. But like any program that must keep up with the changing market place, the state's v-o-tech program is in need of improving.

The Mississippi Economic Council recently completed a six-month study of vocational-technical training programs in four states and found that Mississippi should enact reforms in its program. Among those states surveyed, in addition to Mississippi, were Alabama, Tennessee, and North Carolina.

The report makes several recommendations as to how Mississippi could enhance its vocational-technical training programs and, in doing so, make them more responsive to the needs of potential workers and job markets. Central to these recommendations is the MEC's belief that Mississippi should give priority to the improvement and expansion of its vocational-technical education system. This recommendation includes a call for more funding for state vocational-technical training programs in the state Legislature.

The Mississippi Economic Council recommends that the state's valuable v-o-tech training programs be strengthened and that business, education, and government agree to make the improvements necessary for a better vocational-technical training system in Mississippi.

Conclusion

The City of Bay St. Louis is a growing, active community. The citizens of our City expect stability, efficiency, and effectiveness in city governmental affairs.

Community facilities and service are in a constant state of change. As funds are available and as new sources of revenue are identified, the city administration will make every attempt possible to secure these revenues in an effort to provide needed services and facilities to the citizens of the community.

However, the cost of running and administering city government is enormous. Identifying problems and needs is not a difficult task; the difficulty rests in identifying priorities, in establishing and maintaining a fiscally sound financial structure, and in providing needed public safety to assure the economic and social well-being of our community.

To reach these goals demands sacrifice, patience, and hard work, not only with those elected officers of the city, but with the total community at large.

With your support and efforts and working in harmony together, the City of Bay St. Louis will remain "The Gateway to The Mississippi Gulf Coast."

ETV Brief

BEST SERIES

A two-hour film adaptation of Ford Madox Ford's "The Good Soldier" will be presented on "Masterpiece Theatre" at 9 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 9, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

The story traces the unusual relationship between two wealthy, turn-of-the-century couples — one British, the other American — who meet yearly in the fashionable German spa town of Bad Nauheim. Torn between the moral code he is expected to adhere to publicly as a member of the upper class and his passion for women younger than his wife, Edward Ashburnham, portrayed by Jeremy Brett, is "The Good Soldier" of the title — a story that falls like a bomb in what his friend John Dowell (Robin Ellis) calls "the saddest story I ever heard."

The program has been nominated for Best Dramatic Series in the International Emmy Awards competition.

Corps permits, actions listed

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Mobile District Office recently issued several permits and rendered jurisdictional determinations for wetland projects in Hancock and west Harrison Counties.

A Corps list of general permit recipients for relatively small projects shows permits issued to:

—Dr. Emmett L. Zimmerman III for dredging work and construction of a boathouse, pier and slip on Jourdan River;

—Jasay Ketchum for a pier on Four Dollar Bayou;

—Lloyd R. Leaber Jr. for a pier, bulkhead and fill dirt on a canal off Bay St. Louis in Harrison;

—Larry Bridges for a pier on Cutoff Bayou;

—George McCook for a pier on Cutoff;

—Stuart H. Brehm Jr. for dredging, a pier, and a boat ramp on a canal off the

Jourdan;

—The Bay-Waveland Yacht Club for a bulkhead and fill on the bay;

—Stephen J. Barran Jr. for a pier, boat ramp and dredging in a canal off the Jourdan.

In jurisdictional determinations, Corps officials decided a:

—Nationwide permit, issued for projects not significantly affecting the environment, is necessary for William Wellemyer to construct a bulkhead on a canal in Harrison near the bay;

—Permit is required for the Pass Christian Yacht Club to construct a bulkhead with backfill on the Mississippi Sound;

—Permit is required for Bay Colony Subdivision in Harrison for various waterfront development projects on Young and Malini Bayous and the bay.

Corps officials also determined a wetland area on Sutter Bayou which "Champion Shipyard, Inc." filled was satisfactorily restored.

According to sheriff's investigator Alvin Ladner, Griffin accidentally drove his car into a pick-up truck parked near the L&N Railroad crossing on Beach Boulevard. Apparently upset that he had damaged his car, Griffin is alleged to have removed a piece of 2x4 lumber from the truck and knocked all the windows and windshield out, top photo, and then opened the hood of the truck and ripped out the spark plug wires and anything else that could be torn out, including the battery, brake and fuel hoses, bottom photo. He is also charged with striking Otis Bounds Sr. on the head with the board after Bounds stopped to call the owner of the truck, Mike McGinty who was on duty as Bay St. Louis railroad bridge tender at the time of the incident. Griffin is charged with simple assault and two counts of malicious mischief with bond set at $500; public drunk, indecent exposure and resisting arrest with bond set at $100; and malicious mischief, DUI, and leaving the scene of an accident with bond set at $1,500. ## Modular home move in request tabled

Waveland officials order Tippen St. house removal

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen Tuesday night ordered a structure it deemed a trailer be removed from a Tippen Street lot and tabled approving placement of an apparent modular home on Gulfside Drive property.

The city leaders were expected to amend an ordinance which bans residential trailers from most areas of the city to include modular homes, but City Attorney Lucien Gex advised the board not to change the ordinance because builders are utilizing an increasing amount of prefabricated components in construction.

He explained a structure built with several prefabricated components could be classified as modular construction.

Gex said the aldermen would have to individually consider each modular structure placement request to insure the building meets zoning and Southern Standard Building Code requirements.

The controversy began about two weeks ago when the aldermen questioned if Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry should remove a mobile structure placed on Tippen Street property.

Robert Henry obtained building and water, gas and sewerage connection permits for a modular home.

Gex explained the permits were obtained based on a plot drawing indicating the size and location of the home, but City Building Inspector Emile Henley later discovered what he classified as a trailer on the lot.

Ed Lott of Waveland Mobile Homes on US-90 sold the structure to the Henrys and appeared at the meeting to defend the structural quality of what he classified as a singlewide home which he said was no different from a doublewide mobile home.

He said his homes have a certificate of compliance with the southern code. But Gex argued code requirements for mobile homes and buildings differ.

The attorney said based on photographs of the Tippen Street structure he determined the structure is a trailer and violates area zoning.

Henley stated, "The only thing I can see is it violates the codes and has to be moved."

Mayor John Longo agreed with Henley.

Rhoda Lott, Ed Lott's wife, argued that a doublewide mobile home (a type of modular home) is factory manufactured just as a trailer.

Ed Lott said a singlewide home is stronger than a doublewide structure. After the mayor again said he opposed the structure staying at its present location, Robert Henry quietly left the meeting obviously angry.

Regarding the proposed modular house, the board tabled Walter and Georgette Bernard's request pending their submission of a more detailed description of the structure.

Gex reiterated if the building construction complied with the codes it could be permitted on the site.

Henley added that at least one wall of the building would have to be open to allow inspection of wiring and structural supports.

Georgette Bernard reported hitches, wheels and axles are owned by the manufacturer's retailer to move the structure to a site.

Gex questioned promotional literature which states the modular house is eligible for Farmers Home Administration mobile home financing.

Gex speculated the structure might also be built to comply with code requirements for mobile homes.

When asked if an old standard-construction house could be moved into the city, Longo replied such a structure would not be allowed if it did not meet code and zoning requirements.

Henley added the home could be moved in if it was renovated and placed to meet all requirements.

Animal shelter construction delayed again

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Construction of an animal shelter in Waveland has again been delayed, but this time due to problems encountered by the contractor.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen at a Tuesday night meeting at City Hall voted discussing awarding the contract to next highest bidder at the board's next meeting.

Southern Builders of Pass Christian was low bidder several months ago and awarded the contract of $20,949.

But Mayor John Longo reported Mike Schmitt of the company was not able to produce the required payment bond for the job.

Lucien Gex, city attorney, advised the aldermen to either rebid the project or award the contract to the next highest bidder.

The shelter project, spearheaded by the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, has encountered many problems during the last two years.

Several sites were proposed, but residents and property owners objected until Waveland offered property adjacent to its sewage treatment plant.

Waveland sought bids for the project, but due to a lack of detailed plans the quotations received were high.

The board then had detailed plans drawn and rebid the project.

Ladd's Construction Co. of Waveland was the only other bidder on the shelter project and offered to build the facility for $25,650.

Regarding the State Legislature's recently approved law ordering a one-half cent municipal retail sales tax to fund statewide education improvements, the board endorsed a resolution proposed by Longo opposing the measure.

Longo said the city's resolution would be sent to the Mississippi Municipalities Association and State Rep. J.P. Compretta of Hancock County.

The mayor charged the additional sales tax is 'unfair, unjust and discriminatory' toward cities.

He said the State Alcoholic Beverage Commission revenues were designed to be utilized for the state's educational needs, but those funds have been 'pork barreled' by the state.

Longo revealed the MMA is seeking a one-cent sales tax increase for the cities and the state education tax would thwart those efforts.

Bay woman allegedly helps escapee

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A Bay St. Louis woman is charged with allegedly conveying articles to felony prisoners to aid in their escape on New Year's Day from the Hancock County jail, according to Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Peterson said, "Catherine Hampton, 25, 105 St. Charles St., Bay St. Louis was arrested by Hancock Investigator Alvin Ladner in connection with the escape of two Hancock prisoners on New Year's Day."

Hampton was charged with allegedly conveying articles to felons to aid in their escape.

Deputies heard a noise at about 4 a.m. They chased Cory Sylvester, 19, and Jay B. Cunningham, 29, who fled in different directions eluding officers.

"We strongly believe five prisoners were involved in sawing the bars with ten hack saw blades which were apparently attached under a chocolate cake. It was checked, but the blades were not discovered," Peterson added.

Two sets of bars on a cell window of the two-story building were sawed through for the escape of two prisoners.

Deputies heard a commotion and gave chase as the two fled with George Roth and James Gibbs being caught in the window, Peterson said. Prisoner Michael Pitrie is also believed to be involved in the escape attempt.

Sylvester was awaiting trial for burglary when he escaped in July and was later captured in Texas and Cunningham had been at large for a year when he was caught in New Orleans in September.

He was charged with armed robbery, rape, kidnapping and two counts of jail escape.

Sylvester is described as being white, 5-foot-11 inches tall, 190 pounds, brown hair and eyes, and wearing glasses. Cunningham is described as being black, 5-foot-6 inches tall, 120 pounds, black hair, brown eyes and tattooed on both arms.

Hampton is out on a $5,000 bond with her case slated for presentation to the Hancock County Grand Jury next week, according to Investigator Ladner.

ACNE MYTHS & FACTS

Hygiene

True or False: Dirt and poor hygiene cause acne. Blackheads contain bits of dirt which make them dark.

Frequent and vigorous scrubbing will help acne clear up.

If you answered "true" to any of these three statements, you're among the thousands of people who don't know all the facts on acne.

Neither dirt nor poor hygiene causes acne. The disease results from a combination of factors including heredity, hormones and events that take place beneath the skin in hair follicles/oil gland ducts.

Although blackheads may look like they contain dirt, they actually get their dark color from a concentration of skin pigment.

Gap limit lifted on largemouths

A fishing limit imposed on largemouth bass on several state-operated lakes and one reservoir has been removed, according to the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation.

The fishing restriction, known as the "gap limit," was removed Dec. 31 from lakes Mary Crawford west of Monticello, Mike Conner southwest of Collins, Claude Bennett in Jasper County, Lamar Bruce above Tupelo, and Ross Barnett Reservoir north of Jackson.

The gap limit allowed fishermen to keep largemouth bass that fell within certain size requirements. All other bass had to be released back into the water.

The gap limit, which took effect July 1, 1980, became an extensive research project with the Department to determine the effectiveness of improving the numbers of largemouth bass in those lakes affected, according to Fisheries Chief Jack Herring.

"The program was a success on our four state lakes, but it was particularly impressive on Ross Barnett Reservoir," Herring said.

"When the gap limit was imposed on Barnett, its bass population had declined from about 100 bass per acre to an all-time low of 33 bass per acre. Now bass numbers are back near the 100 level."

Herring said that fisheries biologists will continue monitoring largemouth bass populations on these waters.

"If we find that bass numbers begin to decline again, we won't hesitate to reinstitute the gap limit," he said.

Throughout the two-and-one-half year program, the Department received excellent cooperation and acceptance of the gap limit by anglers, according to Herring.

"It may be necessary to set up a gap limit on some other lakes in the future if bass populations begin to decline."

BRENT MACEY

Brent Macey named Echo sports editor

Brent G. Macey, 29, a staff reporter with The Sea Coast Echo for two years, has been appointed sports editor, according to Ellis Cuevas, editor-publisher.

Macey has covered Bay High School football games, and has also contributed articles on local sports including tennis, track, basketball, golf and baseball.

He will continue his coverage of the Hancock County Supervisors, the Bay St. Louis City Council, general assignments, and will also continue taking photographs for this newspaper.

Macey is a graduate of Concord High School in Concord, N.H. and the University of New Hampshire in Durham, N.H. where he received a bachelor of arts degree in journalism.

"The Echo's entire news staff has covered the sports assignments for some time, and we hope under Macey's direction the group will be able to offer the community a more comprehensive coverage in this area," Cuevas stated.

Either-sex deer hunting scheduled

JACKSON — Mississippi's either-sex deer hunting seasons have been set by the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Known to many hunters as the "doe seasons," this is a time in which hunters may harvest a doe deer in addition to a legal buck.

According to wildlife spokesman in the agency's Jackson office, antlerless hunting is one of wildlife management's useful tools in keeping a deer herd in balance with its habitat.

This year in the Magnolia State there will be a state-wide antlerless day in all counties on Jan. 14. However, this includes only certain state wildlife management areas.

There will be other antlerless hunting days at different times in different counties. The following guidelines should be helpful in knowing which counties or parts of counties are open.

AREA I: Jan. 14, 1983. Statewide but including only the following Wildlife Management Areas: Bucatunna, Red Creek (excluding Refuge), Wolf River (excluding Refuge), and Chickasawhay.

AREA II: Jan. 14-15, 1983. Counties of Adams, Amite, Carroll, Choctaw, Claiborne, Clarke (including Bucatunna Wildlife Management Area), Copiah, west of I-55; Franklin, Grenada, Jefferson, Kemper, Lincoln, west of I-55; Lowndes, south of Hwy 62; Montgomery, Noxubee, Pike, west of I-55; Warren, west of Hwy. 61 and south of I-20; Webster, west of Hwy. 9; Wilkinson, and Yalobusha.

AREA III: Dec. 18, 1982 - Jan. 15, 1983. Counties of Coahoma, west of the west base of the main Mississippi River Levee; Bolivar and Washington, west of Hwy. 1 (excluding Ozark Island); DeSoto, west of the west base of the main Mississippi River Levee; Tunica, west of the west base of the main Mississippi River levee plus those Tunica County lands east of the main Mississippi River Levee and west of the Beaver Dam Lake known as the Owens Brothers Plantation.

The bag limit for the either-sex hunting seasons in all areas during the regular gun season will be one antlerless deer per day, two per season, in addition to the one legal buck per day already permitted.

Areas closed
Additional areas in the lower Mississippi Delta have been closed to all hunting except waterfowl hunting, according to Department of Wildlife Conservation officials.

The newly closed areas include:

—All of Sunflower, Leflore, Humphreys, Issaquena, and Sharkey counties.

—Holmes County west of the hill escarpment (where hills and Delta join).

—Yazoo County, west and north of the hill escarpment.

—Warren County, north and west of Highway 3, and north and west of Highway 465 to the Issaquena County line.

"All hunting, except waterfowl hunting, will be closed in these areas effective midnight, Saturday, Jan. 1 until such time that our technical staff determines that they can be re-opened," executive director Lon Strong said.

Strong said that the agency's five-member board of commissioners voted Thursday to close the areas. Strong emphasized that when game animals like deer are driven from their natural habitat by flood waters, it is a violation of state law to shoot them.

"Hunters should remember that it is unlawful to hunt, trap, take, frighten, or kill game or furbearing animals forced out of their natural surroundings by high water," Strong said.

A check with the U.S. Corps of Engineers Thursday morning revealed that officials there expect the Mississippi River to crest at Vicksburg on Jan. 8 at 42.5 feet.

Real estate professor eyes condos as only alternative

Americans are facing a "downsizing" in their living quarters just as surely as the U.S. auto industry had to reduce the size of its models.

That prediction is from Dr. Dennis Tosh, associate professor of real estate, economics and finance at The University of Mississippi.

It's not by choice, but of necessity, he believes, the realities of economics. And the bottom line points to an emerging "enforced popularity" of a relatively new living style—condominiums.

In the 1980s, the costs of everything—money, materials, labor, land and taxes—means that young couples entering the housing market often can't afford the suburban, ranch-style that their parents could choose.

With construction costs estimated at $40 a square foot and up, and interest rates destined to remain high, they just can't afford it, even with both spouses working.

This means they will have to be content with less living space—either apartments, mobile homes, condominiums or the new-style modular homes.

The class of that company would appear to be condos, says Tosh, because the couple is investing in something of their own, building equity and reducing their outlay with tax reductions on the interest paid.

Rental payments offer none of these advantages, mobile homes seem less desirable to most, and modular homes, a new concept, have run into various ordinance restrictions which have slowed their development.

Housing demands will be on the upswing, too, says Dr. Tosh. The "war babies" of the 1940s are now entering the housing market. Over 40 million Americans are projected to turn 30 years old in the 1980s.

But Tosh predicts there will be no second boom of government-financed housing for this generation of buyers, with the current administration at Washington more attuned to reducing federal assistance programs that now seem unaffordable.

"There's little future for public housing," says Tosh. "Housing is pretty much going to be up to the private sector. It might even be possible that the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) would be eliminated. Barring a big change in philosophy, it looks as if the gray days are over."

Condominiums also have appeal to older people, Tosh believes, and with improved health, this segment of the population will continue to rise. The number of Americans over 65 is predicted to increase by five million in the 1980s.

For young and old, condominiums mean less time, effort and money for lawn upkeep and more amenities such as swimming pools, tennis courts, recreation rooms and laundries.

Condominiums are attractive to developers too, Tosh says. With land prices extremely high in urban areas, it would be difficult or impossible to develop one-family housing.

With the density allowed by multi-story condominiums and the high population or urban workers wanting to be close to their jobs, often owning only one car, development of urban condos looks like a winning investment.

Tosh believes many apartment complexes will be converted into condos in coming years. It frees the owners from the continuing attendant headaches of being landlords, allowing them to recover their investment, turn a profit, and get on with other projects.

National statistics say that when an apartment house converts to condo, the owner can expect 40 to 50 percent of his tenants to buy. This provides a built-in market, says Tosh, and the remainder of the units usually sell very well.

A lot of people can afford condos who can't afford houses, Tosh declares, because with less square footage, the cost goes down, as does the down payment.

Statistically, Tosh notes that the average-size American home doubled in size from 1948 to 1978—to almost 1,800 square feet.

But in 1980-81, the trend changed and the average size decreased. "Of course the smaller living quarters of the future don't mean less costs," said Tosh. "On the contrary, just as with automobiles, we'll be getting less space for the same or even more money."

There isn't much condominium history in Mississippi to guide the market, but the Gulf Coast area, Jackson and Meridian are experiencing some growth. Resort areas such as the Coast are usually the first places to experience condo construction, said Tosh, to accommodate the wealthier buyer for part-time retreats, or retired persons.

He expects increased activity in the state's larger towns—those with 10,000 population and up.

He believes the analogy with the auto industry is valid, although it seems unlikely that foreign imports will hasten the trend. Inflation seems to be a sufficient impetus all by itself.

"A lot of people still say they don't like condos," said Tosh. "Okay, I'm not advocating them either. But what's the alternative?"

Mississippi ranks third nationally in soil erosion

Cropland in Mississippi is falling victim to erosion. Yearly each acre of land averages losing 10.9 tons of soil.

"This is one of our most serious problems in agriculture. During the 1980's we must arrest this problem," said Jim Buck Ross, commissioner of agriculture. Ross went on to say Mississippi is third in the nation in soil erosion. "That's an agricultural statistic we are not proud to boost."

In a recent meeting with Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce representatives, Gus Evans, past-president of the Mississippi Association of Conservation Districts, outlined some of the reasons our erosion has increased over the years.

According to Evans, there is more land in production in Mississippi than ever before. Because more land is in production, there is greater chance of erosion.

Secondly, he stated more land is being developed, especially in the Delta area. With the price of land increasing the farmer makes an effort to utilize every square foot available. When land cost $50 an acre, the bays and sloughs were left. Now that land costs have escalated the farmer has eliminated these waterways thus increasing both his acreage and erosion.

The advent of larger equipment has caused more erosion. In the days of two and four row equipment, there was more terracing to check erosion. Now that larger equipment is available, farmers no longer terrace their fields.

Absentee landlords are also a factor in soil erosion. Because much of the cropland in Mississippi is leased, farmers cannot afford soil conservation practices. The price the leasee pays for the land, generally 25 percent of the gross profits, inhibits his improving the land.

Moreover, unless there is a long-term lease, the leasee has no guarantee he will have the opportunity to benefit from his work.

The greatest factor in increased erosion, according to Evans is the economy. "The farmer, especially the young farmer, simply cannot afford soil conservation practices," said Evans.

Take the soybean farmer as an example. At the time of the interview with Evans, Soybean prices were about $5.25. According to the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, the bean farmer needs to get $7.50 just to break even. How can the farmer spend money for conservation practices when he is operating thus?

"All of this has an economic background," commented Evans. "The farmers today are like they were in the 1920's when they walked off and left their wheat fields in the great plains. They have a desire to put the conservation on the land but they do not have the economic means."

One conservation measure is planting filter strips around each field. On one hand the conservationist tells the farmer to plant filter strips 50 feet on each edge of the field to help keep the streams clean. On the other hand the banker tells the farmer to plant every inch available.

The farmer is moved to follow the directive of his banker. It is not a measure of what the farmer thinks is right but what he is economically forced to do.

Evans has several advantages in his farming operation to help him keep the edge on soil erosion. In Evans' operation near Shuqualak, he has diversified his interests. Evans has a herd of mixed cattle plus raises timber and soybeans. This allows him to rotate his crops. Also with his program he has taken advantage of land farms and soil types to maximize the profit from each acre.

The greatest advantage he has is that his land has been farmed by his family for more than 100 years. He knows his land and the treatment it has been given. Soil conservation is an unending process. It is not something you practice one year then forget. Erosion is like a cancer. There is no cure. Treatment is continuous.

Census Bureau to gather 1982 agricultural data

Mississippi agricultural statistics portray an industry of 54,182 mostly individual or family-operated farms with a high proportion of farmer-ownership and ranking cotton, broiler and catfish production, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce Census Bureau.

The most recent Census of Agriculture indicates that in Mississippi:

*Ninety-one percent of the farms, 49,171 in all, are individually or family operated, higher than the national average of 88 percent.

*Seven percent are operated as partnerships, 2 percent as corporations.

*Sixty-five percent of the farms are owned by the operators, higher than the national 59 percent average; 25 percent are partly owned—farms in which the operator both owns and rents land—and 10 percent are tenants.

*Cotton harvested from 1.2

million acres produced 1.3 million bales, third highest yield in the U.S.

The Mississippi farm operator's status is reflected in a review of data from the Census of Agriculture for 1978. The review offers a perspective in farmer characteristics, products, and sales.

The statistics will be updated by the 22nd Census of Agriculture, with forms to be mailed to all farm and ranch operators in late December to collect data for 1982.

Farmers in Mississippi and around the nation are requested to aid the census by returning their report forms at the earliest possible date, with the deadline set for February 15, 1983.

Census provides the only uniform set of agricultural data at the county, state and national level, publishing information ranging from acreage, crops and livestock to interest payments and value of machinery.

For statistical purposes, a farm is defined as any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold or normally would have been sold during the census year.

A comparison of Mississippi farm data for the censuses of 1969 and 1978 shows that the number of farms in the state declined by 25 percent in the period. However, the figures are not directly comparable due to improved methods of data collection in the latter census and a change in the definition of a farm.

Looking at the size of Mississippi farms, 28 percent, 15,139 farms, were less than 50 acres, and 5 percent were more than 1,000 acres. The majority, 46 percent or 25,168 farms, ranged between 50 and 219 acres with another 21 percent between 220 and 999 acres.

The average Mississippi farm was 256 acres, below the U.S. average of 415 acres. However, a tabulation of the land and buildings value puts the state per acre average at $681, above the national average of $628.

Overall, Mississippi has 13.9 million acres of armland, of which 6 million are in harvested cropland. About 309,500 acres are irrigated.

By market value of Mississippi farm products sold:

*The total return amounted to $1.7 billion, with an average of $31,341 per farm, below the U.S. average of $43,618.

*Seventy-two percent of the state's farms produced sales of less than $10,000; 14 percent, sales ranging between $10,000 and $40,000; 6 percent, from $40,000 to $100,000, and 8 percent, sales of more than $100,000.

*Of the total, $957.2 million came from crops, including nursery and greenhouse products and $740.9 million from livestock and poultry products.

*Poultry sales amounted to $385 million and dairy sales, $84.6 million.

Along with land and production values, expenses also were high on Mississippi farms: Feed for livestock and poultry, $313.3 million; hired labor, $129.8 million; livestock and poultry purchased, $116.7 million; commercial fertilizer, $102.2 million; and gasoline and other petroleum fuels, $93.5 million.

Census data users will look forward to the 1982 results, which will give some understanding of how farmers have weathered the economic situation over the past several years.

Additional crop data show that on an acreage basis, soybeans were in the lead, with 3.7 million acres and a harvest of 74.8 million bushels, seventh highest in the nation.

Hay was next from 624,300 acres; rice was harvested from 215,900 acres (for fifth highest national rank); wheat, 54,200 acres, and orchard land, 20,600 acres.

Livestock statistics show the state is a major producer; cattle and calves, 1.6 million, including 845,900 beef cows,

FAMILY BAND—Wes Mims, 12, of Columbus captured the enthusiasm of the "Family Band" in this photograph that won second place in the Mississippi Junior 4-H Photography Contest. A family reunion held in Carrollton at his grandfather's birthplace provided the setting for the photography. Mims says the family gathers there each year to enjoy bluegrass music.

and 97,000 milk cows; 324,000 hogs and pigs, and 6,200 sheep and lambs. Poultrymen reported 227.4 million broilers sold, fourth highest nationally. The state's producers also reported sales of 28 million pounds of catfish, highest in the U.S.

Other facets of Mississippi agriculture reported by the census:

*The average age of all Mississippi farmers was 51.7 years, a little older than the U.S. average of 50.1 years.

*Seven percent of the farms were operated by women, above the U.S. average of 5 percent.

*Sixty-nine percent resided on the farm they operated. Nationally, the average was 72 percent.

*Thirty-nine percent gave farming as their principal occupation; below the U.S. average of 54 percent.

The statistics are from the publication, Mississippi State and County Data, Volume 1, 1978 Census of Agriculture, available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, or from Commerce district offices in major U.S. cities.

ANOTHER SPRING FLOOD?

Mississippi's record-breaking December rainfall was spaced out throughout the month to such an extent that the state suffered no major area floods, yet the massive run-offs have filled lakes, reservoirs and streams to a point that conditions are ripe for a repeat of the spring floods that ravaged the lower delta in 1973.

During a briefing in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' office in Vicksburg last week, the engineers were quietly feeling the pulse of the state's water holding capacities in light of December's more than 17 inches of rain reported in the Jackson area and with this state's traditional rainy season just ahead.

Mississippi's river towns of Greenwood and Grenada last week were facing crises as floodwaters forced some residents from their homes. By the middle of last week the Yazoo River gauge at Greenwood recorded 37 feet of water depth sweeping southerly from that delta city heading for a confluence with the Mississippi River just north of Vicksburg. The reading was but a foot and four inches less than the crest in March 1973 which forced evacuation of many city residents and caused the Corps of Engineers to hastily top off existing levees with sandbags and plywood. Last week's reading is but three feet short of the all time record of 40.1 feet at Greenwood measured in 1948.

Meanwhile on the northern outskirts of Greenwood the Yazoo River stands at 28.7 feet—two-tenths of a foot higher than during the 1973 floodcrest and only six-tenths of a foot lower than the record level of 27.3 feet recorded in January, 1980.

Michael Logue, a spokesman for the Corps, reported last week that already the floodgates have been closed at the reservoirs upstream from Greenwood, and water has begun to pass through the spillways. These dams are at Grenada, Enid, Sardis, and Arkabutla reservoirs.

Downstream at the Steele Bayou flood control structure near Eagle Lake in Issaquena county, the floodgates were open wide as the engineers enabled the upstream water to move as quickly as possible into the Mississippi River.

The key to lower delta farmland flooding lies with the level of the Mississippi River as it passes the Vicksburg vicinity. Today the Mississippi River level is more than ten feet lower than it stood during the 1973 spring floods, and consequently the lower Yazoo basin is draining satisfactorily rather than building up intensive backwater levels. Yet the level last week of the Mississippi River at Vicksburg of 42.5 feet is comparable to that of the same time of year in 1972-73.

Also, the Corps notes, the water levels in the reservoirs are only too similar to levels of 1972-73.

The new threat catches plans for a future pumping station in the lower delta still on the drawing board so to speak. It will be several years at best before the pumping facility will be in operation to help control the backwater level.

All of this for the farmers in the Yazoo basin is cause for great concern, especially in view of depressed prices for the cotton and soybean crops typically grown in this region.

Spring flooding in the lower delta alters planting dates and means a mandatory shift from cotton to soybeans at a time when soybeans already are in a major cost-price squeeze.

With economists already predicting another lean year for Mississippi farmers, the prospect of another major spring flood is bad news indeed.

NATURAL HEALING
The science of Chiropractic works with natural laws. Chiropractic puts nothing new into your body, nor does it remove any tissue. This type of care restores the body's natural healing ability. Most people, when sick inside, look for some outside agent to cure them. They have great confidence in external things, overlooking the real healing power internally resident within one's body. If the cause of illness is inside one's body, so is its cure. Chiropractic care aids your body's healing power to restore radiant natural health to you again.

NEW FACILITY—Jeanie Moran, left, chief technologist and manager of the x-ray department at Hancock General Hospital, and Beery Schaefer, right, x-ray technologist, examine a patient in the new radiographic and fluoro room at the hospital. Equipment in the room includes an image intensifier with television and tomographic capabilities. This new equipment will decrease the amount of radiation exposure to patients and employees.

New equipment at HGH cuts radiation exposure

Hancock General Hospital has recently opened a new radiographic and fluoro room in the x-ray department.

The room is equipped with an image intensifier and television which decrease the amount of radiation exposure to patients and employees.

Tomographic capabilities are also included in the new facility.

Procedures which can now be performed in the new room include radiographics, fluoroscopic exams and tomograms.

Radiographics are routine x-rays of various parts of the body, such as the chest, abdomen, bone and spine.

Fluoroscopic exams specialize in barium studies of the upper and lower gastrointestinal tract and the gall bladder.

Tomograms are used in detecting masses in the lungs and others parts of the body, as well as hairline fractures and other abnormalities. It employs the principle of motion to blur images above and below predetermined areas.

The image intensifier is a form of fluoroscopy that uses less radiation than the old type of fluoro screen, and transposes the image to a television screen, on which the technologist and patient may view the image. It is usually used in pacemaker implants, needle biopsies, upper and lower gastrointestinal tests and other special procedures.

"Hancock General Hospital is pleased to be able with this facility to provide additional services to our patients," said Phil Langston, hospital administrator. Plans in this department this year include the introduction of nuclear medicine," he added.

Growing Child

Stuttering and Stammering
The repetition of sounds or words, what some people call stuttering or stammering, usually appears in children between the second and third years.

No one knows its origin, but experts feel that there are probably numerous causes, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

A child's desire to talk and the inability of his speech to keep pace with his thoughts can cause stuttering. So can anxiety or rivalry with the arrival of a new baby, sudden changes in routine because of serious illness or death in the family, or parental dissatisfaction with the way the child talks.

Stuttering should not be cause for alarm because most children outgrow it within a few months, if the family is considerate and gives them a chance. The stuttering doesn't disappear suddenly, but it peters out gradually with periodic ups and downs. Here are some do's and don'ts that you can be alert to:

Don'ts
1. Don't correct the child's speech. Be patient and accept what he says, even if he must start or repeat several times.

2. Don't put a premium on speech at this time. If you have been emphasizing speech, switch to activities where he may achieve physically.

3. Don't rush to a surgeon because you think your youngster is tongue-tied. Tongue-tie is a rare condition and seldom the cause of stuttering.

4. Don't hurry him into speech correction or treatment. He is young—first he must develop speech.

Do's
1. Try to examine the daily routine to see if there is anything particular which makes your youngster tense.

2. Provide opportunities for the youngster to be with and talk to other children.

3. If rivalry over a newborn is apparent, see what you can do to reduce it, even if it means temporarily giving a disproportionate amount of time to the older child.

Weather threatens exercise habits

The rainy weather that has covered much of the state recently may tempt even the most devoted exerciser to consider skipping the daily jog around the block.

Susie Overstreet, health education specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said staying inside is fine, but staying in shape is still important.

"When you skip one day, especially if you've been on an exercise program for only a short time, it just makes it that much easier to quit altogether," Overstreet said.

"Actually, cold weather is the safest in which to exercise with respect to body temperature," she added. "Of course, there are some exceptions. Persons with some types of health problems should stay out of the cold, but for most of us the cold weather is a benefit to our exercise program."

Be sure to dress for the cold, just as you dress less when it's hot. Wear loose clothing in layers, and wear a cap of some sort. A surprising amount of heat is lost through the head. Some estimates say as much as 30 percent of bodily heat loss comes from the head area.

"Depending on your sensitivity to the cold, you may want to wear a knitted face mask or a scarf wrapped around your mouth and nose," Overstreet said. "This will warm the air before it enters your lungs. Also, loose fitting mittens are warmer than tight fitting gloves."

Regardless of the temperature, Overstreet recommends brisk walking as the best exercise. If it gets too cold, find an area inside to walk. A mall is a good place, since many are almost empty during weekday mornings.

If there isn't a mall nearby, try the school gym, or the recreation area at your church.

If you absolutely have no place to walk, there are alternatives. But some alternatives are not suitable for some individuals, so you should consult your physician to see if these alternatives are suitable.

"You may have a health club or organization which offers aerobic dancing," Overstreet said. "By the way, 'aerobic' simply means, 'in the presence of oxygen,' so the purpose of aerobic dancing is to stimulate breathing. Other types of dancing, of course, have other purposes."

You can skip rope, or run or walk in place. If you do skip rope you need a rope that is fitted to your height. You don't want enough slack to trip yourself. Also, keep in mind that rope-skipping is a strenuous exercise.

If you plan to do your running or walking in place, you will need a good pair of sport shoes and a padded exercise mat.

"If none of these alternatives suit you, you might be interested in some of the indoor exercise equipment on the market," Overstreet said. "Before investing any money, see if your friends or neighbors have the type in which you're interested. Get their opinion of the equipment, or better still perhaps they will let you try it out."

Overstreet said it is surprising how much exercise equipment is stashed away in attics and basements. Individuals who own this equipment might be able to give you a good assessment of it, and a good price on it, too.

"Keep in mind that most indoor exercising, because of the confinement, is boring and harder to stick with because of that," she warned.

A big exception is swimming, for those who have access to an indoor swimming pool. Swimming is especially good for older individuals since no stress is placed on the joints.

If you gained a pound or two over the holidays, your continued exercise is the healthiest and easiest way to return to your desired weight and stay there, Overstreet said.

"Don't give in to that momentary weakness," she advised. "Stick to your exercise program. It pays large dividends. You'll feel better, look better, work and play better. You'll even get along with family, friends and fellow workers better."

USM professor wins art fellowship

Rita DeWitt, University of Southern Mississippi art professor, is one of two artists awarded a fellowship by the Contemporary Arts Center in New Orleans.

DeWitt was one of 121 artists submitting portfolios for the CAC's Contemporary Photography V competition and one of 27 to have works in the show, which opens Jan. 9.

Two fellowships of $2,500 each also entitle the artists to exhibit new works at the CAC during the 1983-84 season.

The objective of the fellowship is to foster professional development and creative growth in those persons who have successfully demonstrated their excellence and commitment to the field of creative photography.

The competition, open to photographers in Louisiana and Mississippi, has as juror John Pfahl, professor of photography at the Rochester Institute of Technology.

Each artists portfolio consisted of 10 works in black and white, color and manipulated photographs.

The exhibition to hang through Feb. 13 is open Tuesday through Saturday from noon to 5 p.m. at 900 Camp Street.

Coast agency seeks young volunteers

Action National Volunteer Agency, whose program include the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), has initiated a new concept in volunteerism for the Gulf Coast counties of Mississippi.

Sponsored locally by the City of Biloxi, Department of Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs, Young Volunteers in Action (YVA) has been created to channel the energies and talents of young people ages 13 to 22 towards bringing needed service to their communities.

Scottie Maddox, YVA project director for the local program, will begin recruiting volunteers from Harrison, Hancock and Jackson counties through high schools, colleges and military installations during January.

The only requirement, other than age, is that the volunteer be enrolled in at least one course in a secondary, post-secondary or secondary vocational school.

The main objective of YVA is to help young people develop job skills that will make them more employable and to develop personal traits of leadership, responsibility, motivation and initiative.

In return, volunteers will be helping their community meet problems in the areas of human, social, education and economic needs.

Young Volunteers in Action will include opportunities for long and short-term service assisting local agencies.

Areas that will be addressed include programs for the handicapped, elderly and poverty groups, and opportunities are unlimited in many other areas of volunteerism.

Young people are needed immediately in agencies including de L'Epee Deaf Center, Harrison County Association for Retarded Citizens, Gulf Coast Easter Seal Society, YVA Medical Centers in Biloxi and Gulfport, Cheshire Home, Hancock General Hospital, Miramar Lodge Nursing Home, South Mississippi Retardation Center, Harrison County Humane Society, Gulfport Convalescent Center, Duke Senior Citizens Center and the City of Biloxi Recreation Department.

Many other agencies within the three county area have expressed interest in the new program and with community support, young volunteers should have over 30 agencies with which to match their interests and talents.

Advisory councils, composed of citizens from all areas of the coast, are being established in order to give input to YVA and help create interesting and challenging volunteer programs.

Students are asked to commit themselves from 8 to 10 hours of service each month and can volunteer individually or as part of a group or club.

Individuals will be placed in ongoing service projects that match their skills, interest and talents.

Groups can perform various one-time projects such as helping to establish a handicapped summer recreational program, adopting an agency to work with clients in a Big Brother-Big Sister relationship, start a remedial reading awareness center or working with the elderly in home "fix-up" projects.

Ideas for volunteer jobs are unlimited—and young people who become active in this program will be able to utilize the skills and experience they have earned in community work to apply to their resumes and job applications.

Young Volunteers in Action is not all work, however. Meeting others is an important part of the program and recognition and awards will be planned for the young people throughout their service time.

YVA also offers accident and personal liability coverage on the volunteer while they are working and some transportation costs can be reimbursed.

The Gulf Coast's Young Volunteers in Action is the only such program that has been funded within the state of Mississippi.

Its success will depend upon the support of agencies and volunteers, and their dedication to the spirit of volunteerism.

"Our youths are a neglected resource, and a vital part of our community who really want to make a contribution to their city; young people want to know that they are needed," says Mrs. Maddox. With this positive concept as a goal, everyone involved will benefit, she added.

Each volunteer will be given an orientation on volunteer skills and their talents and interests will be matched with agency requests through a screening process.

The objective of this project is the establishment of a volunteer bank that can be used effectively for a resource for all volunteer needs that become available throughout the Gulf Coast area.

Those interested in becoming members of YVA may call Scottie Maddox in Biloxi at 432-2563.

It takes 17 muscles to smile—43 to frown.

There have been a number of changes in the show itself this year, including new stage sets, a new sound system, the number of new performers and a new theme.

The backdrop for the stage was designed by Sissie

Myrick, USM graphics artists, with one graphic idea which contains the show name surrounded by colorful bursts of fireworks.

"The recent purchase of a new Peavy Sound System, including greater speaker capacity and equalization units, will add a new dimension of quality to the 1983 show," said Timothy Breland, Southern Exposure director.

"I am very excited about the new Southern Exposure cast which includes only three returning members," Breland said. "The promotional activities that the group will be involved in should be successful because of the enthusiasm the members exert."

As opposed to last year's very specific circus theme, the 1983 show, "Sing Hallelujah," is based on a more generalized American Music idea, using the fundamentals of hope, love and happiness.

"Mountain Music," by Alabama, and "All That Jazz," from the musical "Chicago" will be two of the featured numbers in the show.

"This year's cast of performers brings with it a variety of background experience in the areas of musical and dance performance," Breland said.

Two members of the group have had experience performing with the Six Flags Entertainment Corporation and another has danced with several professional organizations including the Jackson Ballet.

Members of Southern Exposure include performers David Ayers of Blountsville, Ala., Linda Bishop of Vicksburg, Billy Bryan of Meridian, Scott Caples of Tupelo, Sherry Elkins of Wesson, Donna Ginn of Atlanta, Ga., Lisa Hargett of Vicksburg, Shawyn Mars of Mendenhall, Melissa Watts of Hattiesburg, and Bryan Whittington of Natchez; musicians Timothy Breland of Laurel on piano; Scotter Whitley of Vicksburg on drums; and Russ Harless of Sumrall on bass; Jerry Thorpe of Mobile, Ala., sound; and Nancy Wingo, choreographer.

Health care field opportunities told

Those teenage would-be physicians who are beginning to recognize some of the inevitable obstacles associated with such a career may want to consider other choices in the health care field.

Dr. Ann Jarratt, a 4-H youth development specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said young people who become disillusioned with a medical career because of the high admissions standards and the long years of training do not necessarily have to abandon a health-related career entirely.

"A wide variety of health careers do not require the length of training demanded of a would-be physician," Jarratt said.

The 4-H specialist advises club members in Mississippi in career-related projects. She said a list of careers in the health field is a long one, but many young people fail to see the potential when they get past the most obvious choices.

"Many health careers require less training than that of a medical doctor, but those who choose the lesser training also have to understand there will be less income, too," Jarratt said.

Jarratt's list of health careers includes some of the more obvious ones such as medical doctors, nurses, dentists, ophthalmology and pharmacy, but she said there are many others also. Among these are:

—Emergency medical technicians and physicians assistants.

"Some junior colleges and vocational-technical centers offer training for people interested in these two health areas," she said.

—Respiratory therapy.

"This job lets people be involved in a patient's health care by positioning, operating and regulating machinery that will help people breathe easier," Jarratt said.

—Medical technologists, laboratory technicians.

"Those people who may be more interested in working in the laboratory than with direct patient care can choose a career in medical technology." "This career requires a three-year medical technology course at a university and one year of internship in a hospital."

Jarratt said young people who might not want the four years of training might consider becoming a laboratory technician who works under the supervision of a laboratory technologist.

—Dental hygiene.

"Dental hygienists scale and clean teeth, give fluoride treatments, take x-rays and teach patients better ways to care for their teeth," Jarratt said.

—Optometrists and opticians.

"An optometrist attends four years of college plus three or four years of specialized training."

Some of the ways to do business with us are changing.

But we're still as close as your phone.

The telephone industry is changing—reorganizing. That means more options for you. And some changes in the way you do business with us. If you've done business with us lately, you may have gone to one of our retail outlets. Now, if you need help with phone service, call us like a South Central Bell service representative if you want to:

- order new phone service.
  - change your existing service.
  - disconnect your service.
  - ask a question about your bill.
  - exchange or return sets purchased or leased from South Central Bell.
- (We cannot exchange or take back sets purchased or leased from other suppliers.)

Call South Central Bell's repair service if you have trouble with your service or with a phone set that is leased from South Central Bell. For service or repair of phone sets that you own—whether they came from South Central Bell or another supplier—you should follow the warranty instructions or other maintenance arrangement made at the time of purchase.

You'll find the phone numbers for your service representative and repair service in the front of the South Central Bell phone book. When you call us, in many cases we'll be able to complete your business or solve your problem while you're on the phone. In other cases, we may offer to mail equipment or parts to you. Or you may be referred to a phone company service center to complete your transaction. If so, we'll tell you where the nearest one is and when it's open.

Some things won't change. During 1983 South Central Bell will still provide you with dependable local and long distance phone service. We'll continue to be responsible for phones that residence and business customers now lease from us. And we'll continue to lease telephones (next to sell some selected phones) as long as they're available from inventory. (With regulatory approval, we do plan to offer single-line residence and business customers the option of buying telephones that are now leased from us.)

There'll be more changes in the telephone industry in the coming year or so as South Central Bell and other Bell operating companies are separated from AT&T and reorganized into regional companies. This change in organization, to take place in 1984, will affect significantly how you get and use telecommunications services.

But no matter how things change, South Central Bell is committed to seeing that certain things remain the same. We'll still have good, dependable people and the same goal: providing you with the best, most advanced telephone service at reasonable rates.

We'll keep you informed. But in the meantime, if you have any questions about the changes in the industry or about how to do business with us now call 1-800-555-5000, toll free, 10 a.m.-11 p.m., Central Time, Monday through Friday. Or write for a free brochure, "Let's Talk About Change."

Let's Talk.

☐ Please send me your free booklet: LET'S TALK ABOUT CHANGE.

☐ Please have someone call me with information on:

☐ Mornings are best. ☐ Afternoons are best.

☐ Residence customer. ☐ Business customer.

Send to: South Central Bell, P.O. Box 435, Memphis, TN 38101.

International Paper sets dictionary gift

The Mississippi Library Commission will receive 245 dictionaries — one for every public library in the state — from International Paper Company on Thursday, Jan. 13.

The American Heritage dictionaries are part of IP's "Power of the Printed Word" campaign, which is aimed at improving the communications skills of the nation's young people. The campaign consists of a series of how-to articles written by experts in fields such as reading, writing, spelling, and the use of libraries. The dictionaries have specially-designed covers offering tips on "How to Improve Your Vocabulary."

IP's John Squires, who will present the dictionaries to Mississippi Library Commissioner David R. Woodburn, said: "We are very proud of the 'Power of the Printed Word' campaign. These dictionaries are our way of sharing it with the people of Mississippi, a state where IP employs nearly 4,000 persons and where we have had major operations for well over a half century."

TALENT RECOGNITION—Stephanie Ewing, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Ewing of Diamondhead; James Hendrix, center, son of Mrs. Lynn Dorr of Bay St. Louis; and Brian Overstreet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robin Overstreet of Ocean Springs were recently selected by Duke University as tops in the university's 1983 Talent Identification Program (TIP). Objectives of the TIP Program are to identify the very bright at an early age; to assist in the educational facilitation of these students; to follow and nurture their talent through the middle and high school years; to assist in their placement in colleges and universities that have programs of a quality that matches the students potential; and to develop an effective research effort to help understand the nature of gifted adolescents.

ATTENTION HANCOCK COUNTY AGRICULTURAL PROPERTY OWNER:

The Mississippi State Tax Commission directs that all properties shall be assessed at market value, unless the land is deemed to be used for agricultural purposes. Miss. Code of 1972, Section 27-35-50 qualifies agriculture land for use value as follows: "The land shall be deemed to be used for agricultural purposes when it is devoted to the commercial production of crops and other commercial products of soil, including but not limited to the production of fruit and timber or the raising of livestock or poultry." Commercial production then is the only limiting factor. In order to qualify for use value of agricultural land, the following criteria must be met:

1. Any land that is producing a crop or commercial product of the soil must have a gross income of at least $50.00 per acre or must be over 20 acres in size.
2. The taxpayer must apply for use value between January 1 and April 1 of each year by making application as provided in Section 27-35-49 Mississippi Code of 1972 annotated. This application must be on the form prescribed by the State Tax Commission.
3. A three acre homestead will be valued separately for each parcel that has a residence. This homestead will be valued at market price.
4. Improvements to the land such as dikes for catfish ponds will be added at cost.

In accord with the directions from the Mississippi State Tax Commission, this office is forwarding applications to all known property owners for land use value on property. Please return this application to the Tax Assessor's Office, Post Office Box 192, Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi 39520, prior to April 1st. As always, this office will be happy to assist you in this endeavor. If you do not receive your application after the 1st week of January and are eligible, please contact this office and forms will be provided.

Science Fair dates listed

Dates for the Mississippi Science and Engineering Fair have been set for April 15 and 16, according to Lawrence Bellipanni, state science fair coordinator.

The fair will be held at Jackson State University.

Students competing in the fair will be chosen from six regional fairs to be held in March.

The dates and locations of these fairs are Region I, hosted by the University of Southern Mississippi, March 23; Region II, hosted by Hinds Junior College, March 30 and 31; Region III, hosted by Delta State University, March 24 and 25; Region IV, hosted by Northeast Mississippi Junior College, March 25 and 26; Region V, hosted by Mississippi State University, March 25 and 26; Region VI, hosted by the University of Southern Mississippi, March 25 and 26.

USM will host two regions because of the large number of participants from South Mississippi, Bellipanni said.
